BEST SECURITY.

Lives there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself has said,
I must protect my loving wife,
And to must assure my life.
I would not be a scoundrel boor,
Who dies and leaves his family poor.
I'll pay a premium every year,
And then my loved ones need not fear;
But who can tell what may have Happened? I have far more than can save,
Or if when old I living be,
The money will provide for me.

The money will provide for me,
And an old age secure and bright,

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, OCTOBER 22nd, 1895.

REUTER reports another stage in the negotiations for the evacuation, by the Japanese, of the Liaotung Peninsula. The three great European Powers, France, England, Japan to retire from Manchuria, and thus snatching from her one of the chief fruits of victory, have since been worrying her to hasten the evacuation and to reduce the extra indemnity asked for from China as a condition of surrendering the territory.

To escape further badgering, and, no doubt, to be rid of further interference, the Japanese Government have agreed to evacuate the peninsula within three months and to reduce the additional war indemnity to £15,000,000. This is a very substantial reduction from the amount first asked, and China should feel grateful for the efforts put forth on her behalf by zealous if not disinterested friends. But whether the Peking Government is really grateful for the intervention of the European triumvirate is perhaps less certain than the ordinary observer might think. The mandarins have had previous experience of Russian liberality: they have not forgotten how, after having occupied Kuldja for some years on the plea—not a bad one, by the way—that the country was in a state of anarchy, they desired to retain it, and were with difficulty bought out. They may possibly entertain a suspicion that Russia's objection to Japan securing a footing on the mainland is not so much on account of the welfare of China as the fear that she may not be able to realise the project of which the construction of the great Trans-Siberian Railway is one of the means to a great and long sought end—the establishment of a port in the Pacific that will be free from ice and open to navigation throughout the winter.

Already Russia and France have begun to reap the first fruits of their opportune intervention in the Chino-Japan settlement, in the floating of a big loan to China whereby to pay the first instalment of the war indemnity to Japan. What Germany is ultimately to get in return for her good offices remains to be seen, but she has obtained a concession at Tientsin and another at Hankow, and German officers are being engaged to instruct and reorganise the Chinese army. No doubt there will be some contracts to be picked up. It is evident that the three Powers are fairly content with the result of their little deal, or they would not have continued to exercise pressure on Japan, but would have left the date of the evacuation of the Liaotung Peninsula to the two Powers concerned to settle, and would not have bothered themselves as to the amount of the additional war indemnity. But not only have they gone into these details and bargained with Japan, but they also appear to have carried the negotiations into other directions and to have stipulated with Japan that the freedom of navigation of the Formosa Channel is to be assured. There was, of course, no harm in seeking such an assurance from Japan, but we imagine she would have been quite willing to guarantee this, which in any case she could not have refused, if it had been sought for in friendly conference.

The truth is it is difficult to resist the conclusion that the action taken by the three Powers was dictated by a lively sense of favour to come. Great Britain is out of the little coercive circle, and it is satisfactory to reflect that she has no finger in this pie. United action in China is desirable certainly vis-à-vis the Peking Government; but, the Powers are most assuredly not called upon to bolster up the Sick Man of the Far East at the expense of the poly progressive and enlightened of purely Asiatic Empires. The action of the three Powers has had an effect; it has removed the scales from the eyes of the Japanese Government, and shown them their true friends. As for what is thought or said in Peking, that is a matter of secondary importance, for the sentiment of gratitude has never, so far, influenced the Chinese Imperial Government in its dealings with foreigners.

The announcement made by H.E. the Governor at the meeting held in connection with the Hongkong Public Library on Monday, that the Government will be prepared to assist young and useful institution financially, will have been received with widespread satisfaction. Probably financial assistance will not long be required, for when the Library has once fairly set up on its feet it will prove self-supporting, especially if it be provided with a house rent free, as it might be if it were amalgamated with the City Hall Library. In the meantime it must be regarded as a very fitting object for financial assistance of the Government. When it had passed its infancy and become a well-established and flourishing institution of proved utility the Government might perhaps with advantage go a step further and by legislation transfer it to the control of the City Hall and Morrison Libraries. Whatever the technical reading of the terms upon which the books composing those libraries are held by the Committee of the City Hall there can be no doubt whatever that the manner in which the books are at present guarded from use by the public would be extremely repugnant to the wishes of those responsible for the original collection: they were still alive to give punction to them. The manner in which the City Hall Library is conducted is opposed to all reason and common sense and the Government would have the same justification for stopping in and putting matters on a better basis than the Charity Commissioners in England have for dealing with charitable bequests that have ceased to serve a useful purpose under the original terms on which they are held.

According to a letter from Dr. CANTLIC read at Monday's meeting the unofficial members of Council opposed the scheme of the Public Library "on the ground that there were no readers outside the Hongkong Club to justify a library." It is correctly represents the position taken up by the unofficial members: it is only another instance of that curious want of sympathy between them and the public that has during the last twelve months been often remarked. Now that the Hon. T. H. Whitehead has returned to the colony the bonds between the unofficial members and those whom they are supposed to represent may be again drawn closer, for Mr. WHITEHEAD seems to have a better appreciation of public requirements and popular feelings, and, we hope, pleasure that he attended the Public Library meeting on Monday and gave the scheme his support. If Monday is to carry the scheme through a committee of the Friends of the Library, and the Friends of the Chinese, will be able to give punction to them. The French missionaries would not accept this finding, and the whole matter is now placed in the hands of the French Bishop of the diocese and the French consular authorities.

An extraordinary incident occurred at Shanghai on the 16th inst. at the Shanghai Horse Bazaar. A countryman was driving a buffalo along the Pudding Wall Road towards the Settlement, for the purpose of disposing of it at market in order to raise funds to provide a coffin for a relative, when the police suddenly surrounded him. The man attempted to contrive it by binding his own head, but the result was to injure it, but the result only served to irritate the crowd still more. Dashing wildly about, it ran into the compound of the Shanghai Horse Bazaar Company, and breaking through a door, got into one of the stables and injured a pony. It then rushed off into the way to the back yard, where there were a number of loose ponies. Amongst these it made a good deal of havoc, and two ponies were so injured that they may not live. Mr. Blair E. Mayne, the manager, hearing the uproar went to the spot and with the help of some mattoos secured the pony, but it was then discovered that it had a stick in its mouth, which it was biting away. The horse seemed absolutely mad. Affairs were becoming critical when Mr. Mayne loaded his revolver and with two well-directed shots at the head killed it. The owner of the animal appears to have been slightly hurt during the exciting hunt, and those who witnessed the occurrence are surprised that more damage was not done. Had the animal got into the Maloo the consequences must have been a good deal more serious—N. C. Daily News.

The Wonthor correspondent of the N. C. Daily News gives the following account of the accident to the Kuan-chang. She bumped on an unmarked and covered rock near Mountai about 8.30 on the evening of the 5th. There was a swell on the sea, and it was likely that the ship had run over a rock. The distance between two waves for her lifted right off at once and secured none the worse for the time. Evidently, however, the rocks had given way, for the almost immediately began to make water in the stoke hole. Her engine acted with promptitude and found her way in through an unknown and dangerous passage to a spot where she was fortunately beached. In the morning Mr. Arnot, chief officer of the Kuan-chang, with the only fireman who was willing to remain below, worked up to their wrists in water bravely keeping the upper fire going, though the lower one was already under water; another fire minutes or less would have put out over this fire and the vessel must have gone down. Under the unfortunate circumstances every praiseworthy effort was made to save the crew and to bring them to safety. We hope that the efforts of the public will be rewarded.

The Straits Times says the two German torpedo boats that have arrived on their way to China will shortly be followed by a torpedo-boat from Britain.

A Yokohama telegram of the 13th inst. from the N. C. Daily News states that General Miura, Japanese Minister to Korea, having been found responsible for the late coup d'état, Seoul has been recalled.

We observe that a paragraph is going the rounds of the papers recording the discovery of copper in Japan. The copper is said to have been regular article of export almost over since the opening of the country to foreign trade.

The flag of the Teihing and some other vessels in port at Shanghai were at half-mast on the 18th inst. owing to the death of Mr. H. Arnot, chief officer of the Teihing. Mr. Arnot was returning to his ship and had just got on board when he fell down dead in his room. The event was the result of fatty degeneration of the heart.

It is proposed to present a piece of plate to Lieutenant-Colonel Barrow on his departure from the colony and a similar piece of plate to be designated "The Barrow Plate" to the Royal Naval Museum in commemoration of Colonel Barrow's services to the colony and the Empire which was named by him. He has been the first Commandant. Particulars will be found in our advertisement column.

Subscription lists are to be found at the Hongkong Club, German Club, Club Lusitano, Messrs. Kelly & Walsh, Limited, Messrs. Lam, Crawford & Co., and Messrs. Falconer & Co. From a private letter from Peking we (N. C. Daily News) learn that the spirit of protest has penetrated even that case of conservatism. Some fifty Hanlins have started a club for the purpose of promoting the spread of general knowledge, and have already gone so far to publish a paper called the Wan Kuo King Pao. It consists of half-a-dozen leaves, and is published every other day, the editor of the paper being Mr. Timothy Richard as to how the better carry out their scheme of education; another thing that is the master's book, and not the servant's. The entry ought to be made at the time.

His Worship—The master was not there to make the entry; he knew nothing about it. If you could have proved that the master knew it, without doubt it would have been quite a different thing.
